

Homewood Studios [www.homewoodstudios.com]will be hosting a concurrent exhibition for the 2019 NCECA conference, Claytopia, in Minneapolis. The gallery is proposing an exhibition featuring ceramic artists whose work displays a unique artistic voice informed by their past careers and experiences outside of clay.

There are many accomplished ceramic artists who have come to the field as “latecomers.” They have enjoyed significant life experiences and careers before committing themselves to clay. We are looking for accomplished ceramic artists with this profile to participate in a concurrent show at the Homewood Studios gallery as part of Claytopia, the 2019 national NCECA conference, to be held in Minneapolis. Many conference attendees are also “latecomers” to clay and a show honoring the work of people like them can be both interesting and inspirational.

We are reaching out to you because we feel you fit this profile or likely know of others who may fit it. If you know of others whose work you admire who would fit this profile, would you forward this call to them. They can be from either within or outside MN. Many thanks. Following is the call.

Five Minnesota artists will be represented in this show, and each will be asked to invite another artist, from outside of Minnesota, whose work they feel is unique and who also has enjoyed a non-ceramics career before commencing their clay work. Selected artists will be invited to place 3-4 pieces in the exhibition.

To indicate your interest in participating, or with questions, please email:

george@homewoodstudios.com
subject line “Voices from Elsewhere”

Include:

- 2 images representative of your work
- a bio, resume or summary of your background prior to your involvement with clay
- your willingness, if possible, to invite a non-Minnesotan clay artist to participate

Important deadlines and dates:

- Submission of requested materials December 15th 2017
- Notification of selected artists – December 30th, 2017
- Selected artists submit non-Minnesota artist recommendations - January 15th, 2017
- Invitations sent to non-Minnesota artists – January 20th
- Invited non-Minnesota artists submit materials – January 20th, 2017

Please pass this call to other clay artists who fit the description above. Thank you.
